General Rules

By entering the Robotics for Good Youth Challenge 2026 (the “Competition”), you hereby warrant that all information submitted is true, current, and complete. Participation is subject to the Collaboration Guidelines and the present Terms and Conditions. ITU reserves the right to verify the eligibility of all participants. Participation is free of charge but does not entail any right to compensation of any kind or to reimbursement of any expenses incurred. All entries, regardless of categories, must not: (a) violate the intellectual property rights of third parties; (b) be illegal under applicable national laws and international law; and (c) depict or incite hatred, defame, abuse, harass, stalk, threaten a specific person or social group, incite violence or conflict, contain offensive content or violate the legal rights of third parties (including those of privacy and publicity).

Travel and Visa

The winning team of the junior category and the winning team of the senior category of each National Event approved by the ITU and organized following the Collaboration Guidelines will be invited to attend the Grand Finale in Geneva from 7-8 July 2026. ITU shall not be responsible for the travel, visa, accommodation, supervision arrangements and costs of participants, which are exclusively the responsibility of the winning teams, their members and/or parent/legal guardian, as the case may be. Participants who are not yet 18 years old are subject to the consent of their parent or legal guardian as a condition of participation in the Grand Finale in Geneva.

In addition to the terms of the general privacy notice of ITU's website, the following terms shall apply with respect to the collection and processing of your personal information by ITU:

a. You hereby provide your consent for the processing, including collection, use and storage by ITU of all contact information submitted by you (hereinafter, the "Participant Data"), for the purpose of managing your participation and for enabling and facilitating your participation in the competition, including notifying the winners of the competition. You acknowledge that, to the extent that it is necessary, ITU may pass specific Participant Data to third parties who assist ITU in the organization and management of the Competition, such as the jury participants, or provide Competition-related services on behalf of ITU. Prior to sharing Participant Data with third parties, ITU satisfies itself that such third parties afford appropriate protection with respect to the processing of personal information.

Copyright

All participants will retain the intellectual property rights on the contents of their submissions. However, by entering the Competition, each participant grants ITU a limited, non-exclusive, global, royalty-free right and license to use, reproduce, communicate, demonstrate, make available for public, display and distribute the content of his/her submission for ITU's marketing, promotional, informational and educational or awareness purposes, via printed or digital or online media, including ITU's website.

- a. By entering the Competition, participants agree to release and hold harmless ITU from and against any and all claims, expenses, and liability, including but not limited to negligence and damages of any kind to persons and property, infringement of trademark, copyright or other intellectual property rights arising out of or relating to their participation in the Competition and the contents of their submissions.
- b. ITU reserves the right in its sole discretion to disqualify any submission which does not comply with the present Terms and Conditions.
- c. Participants in the Competition are not allowed to use the titles, acronyms and logos of ITU or other branding elements of ITU on material that was produced by them. Participants are also not allowed to use their submissions for purposes and aims inconsistent with ITU's mandate and mission.

d. ITU shall have the right, in their sole discretion, to abbreviate, modify, suspend, cancel or terminate the Competition without any future obligation, by notifying the participants via an announcement on the Competition website.

e. ITU reserves the right to make all final decisions in respect of the Competition. Nothing herein shall be considered to be a limitation or a waiver of the privileges and immunities of the ITU, which are specifically reserved.
